

Drones

A drone is a remote controlled pilotless aircraft. They can be both helpful and harmful in the United States. Drones can be helpful to humans and both harmful to humans and animals.

Drones can be harmful to animals because when humans go hunting and they bring drones along with them to lure the animals, the animal wouldn't have had a chance and died with out a doubt. Hunters need to go off and find the animals themselves so that the animals would atleast have a chance to live. Plus, what's the fun in hunting if you dont go out and find the animal yourself?

Drones can be helpful to humans when they deliver packages or pizza. But, drones can also be harmful because if they are to high up in the air where planes fly, the plane could crash into the drone and damage something.

Drones can also be helpful to people when they use them to deliver things like pizza or a package. But, it is also a bad thing because then people arent going out and doing it themselves.

That is why I think drones can both be helpful and dangerous to humans and dangerous to animals.
